III Rights and Obligations of the Members

1. The services provided by AIPH are at the disposal of all the members, provided they respect the confidentiality of information provided by other members and adhere to decisions based on it. Within the framework of its Charter, AIPH is committed to extend its activities to all areas of the ornamental horticulture industry. This requires the co-operation of the member organisations, which are obliged in particular to contribute information to and views on issues under discussion. This will include the provision of information, when it is requested by the General Secretariat and by the secretaries of the Standing Committees.
2. It is the responsibility of the member organizations to represent AIPH interests in dealings with governmental authorities, other public bodies and non-statutory organizations in their respective countries. When appropriate, however, AIPH itself will present its policy directly to inter-governmental and other international bodies. The Executive Committee, the Board of Directors and the members have an obligation to identify issues of importance to AIPH, both national and international. The Board of Directors represents the members in the daily management and are thus governed by the rules of the Charter. The President and the Executive Committee may also initiate other discussions within AIPH; any policy or financial decision taken as a result of these, however, requires the ratification by a subsequent General Meeting.

Work plans must be finalized and submitted to the SG by June 1 of any given year for the following years' budget. The SG and Board of Directors will use these budgets as a basis for the entire AIPH budget to be proposed to the Members at the General Meeting for their approval.
3. Expenditure on exceptional items requires the approval of the Board of Directors or, in the absence of a Board meeting, of the President. The President will report such expenditure to the board electronically as soon as possible.
